National Art Education Association Website Wins APEX 2009 Award of Excellence!

Reston, VA (July 6, 2009) – The National Art Education Association (NAEA) has been awarded the APEX 2009 Award of Excellence in the category of “Most Improved Web & Intranet Sites.”

APEX 2009 – the 21st Annual Awards for Publication Excellence – is an international competition that recognizes outstanding business and nonprofit publications. Awards were given in 122 communications categories, in 11 main categories including: newsletters; magazines and journals; magapapers and newspapers; annual reports; brochures, manuals and reports; electronic and video publications ; Web and intranet sites; campaigns, programs and plans; writing; design and illustration; and one-of-a-kind publications. According to the APEX 2009 judges, "The awards were based on excellence in graphic design, quality of editorial content and the success of the entry in conveying the message and achieving overall communications effectiveness." More information on the awards can be found here: <http://www.apexawards.com>.

ABOUT NAEA

Serving more than 20,000 active members, the National Art Education Association (www.arteducators.org) is the leading professional organization for pre K-12 art educators, as well as college and university professors and researchers, arts administrators and policymakers, community arts educators, and museum educators.

Working to promote art education through professional development, service, advancement of knowledge, and leadership, NAEA represents educators in all 50 states plus the District of Columbia, U.S. Possessions, most Canadian Provinces, U.S. military bases around the world, and 25 foreign countries. NAEA works with its members to support professional growth, change, and leadership through mentoring, networking and collaborating, developing and disseminating exemplary resources on art education, and building a professional community by contributing time and talent to others.
